

HIGHLIGHTS OF 2001

- Art for Healing's annual benefit and exhibition last November at the Fraenkel Gallery was both successful and enjoyable. Next to the Gallery's splendid exhibition of vintage Richard Avedon photographs, AfH presented a selection of recently donated paintings, prints, and sculpture. In the annual drawing for a work of art, Catherine and Stephen Brooks won a large elegant monoprint by Daniel Phill, a San Francisco artist who was present at the gathering.

- Contributions of works of art amounted to almost $200,000 worth of new inventory during the year, including a fine corporate collection, works from the Walter and Josephine Landor Trust, a private collection to be exhibited in honor of the late Linda Faith Schoer, and a number of individual contributions of excellent quality.

- David Perry, local public relations specialist, has been donating his services to Art for Healing, and last December a spot on local television featuring Executive Director Angus Whyte was broadcast for Inside City Limits. David also published a history of Art for Healing in the February, 2002, 25th Anniversary Issue of the Management Center's publication, Opportunity Knocks.

- The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce hosted an exhibition selected from Art for Healing's inventory from November, 2001, until February, 2002.

2002 CHALLENGE GRANT

- Grants to AfH this year include several new sources, including San Francisco Grants for the Arts, the Pew Charitable Trust, and the donor-advised Schwab Fund for Charitable Giving. Further, a second award was received from Patty and Greg Raleigh and their family foundation.

- Please mark your calendars: the Fall 2002 benefit is scheduled for Thursday, November 7, 2002 at the John Pence Gallery, 750 Post Street, San Francisco, 6 to 8 pm. The Gallery exhibition scheduled for that time is Epic Still Lives, and AfH will again showcase a selection of recently contributed works of art.

- Just before going to press with this newsletter, Alec Capriles, who is moving to Florence, donated nine beautiful pieces of Asian art, including a Chinese Ming Dynasty ancestral painting, two 18th century Tibetan thankas, a rare Korean Sillha bowl from 500 A.D., four Tang ceramic figures, and a Sung Dynasty celadon funerary jar.

- Extremely exciting news is the award of a $25,000 Challenge Grant from Roger Evans, long-time Art for Healing supporter, venture capitalist, and art collector. It is the Board's desire and goal to at least double that amount by the end of 2002. Attached to this newsletter is a Challenge Grant form, and we request that you complete the form, make a contribution, and help Art for Healing match our $25,000 challenge grant before year's end.

CURRENT PLACEMENTS

Art for Healing is in the process of providing works of art for Planned Parenthood, which maintains nine different facilities in the Bay Area. AfH continues to work with the Friends of Langley Porter who have selected an additional three dozen works for the new Langley Porter Children's Center at UCSF, which will officially open this Fall. This month, Teru Hirano, administrator from the Hospitals Auxiliary at UCSF Medical Center, and two nurse colleagues chose thirty-five works for the 15th Floor Labor and Delivery Unit, where patients are sometimes confined for long periods of time. Nurse Tina Ratto, in her letter of acknowledgment, writes: "...our patients, particularly those hospitalized for many days or weeks are the beneficiaries of Art for Healing's generosity.
